DETAILED ACTION

Remarks

Amendment filed June 30, 2008 has been not persuasive due to a new ground rejection provided as follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 8-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lee et al. (US Pub. 2004/0145584).

Lee discloses a display apparatus having a backlight section (230) and a load panel display, said display apparatus comprising:

an input-voltage generation section for generating a direct current input voltage from an alternating current (210, 242);

a first power conversion section (242-b) including a primary side for receiving said direct current input voltage (210,242-a) and a secondary side isolated from said primary side for generating a direct current power-supply voltage to be supplied to said load as a result of a DC-DC power conversion process carried out on said direct current input voltage;

a second power conversion section (220) including a primary side for receiving said direct current input voltage and a secondary side isolated from said primary side and used for generating a power-supply voltage to be supplied to said backlight section; and a display section for displaying (Fig. 6) using said backlight section. wherein a plurality of said backlight sections is employed as a light source of said display section and as many said second power conversion sections as said backlight sections are provided, wherein a fluorescent tube (510) is employed as said backlight section and said second power conversion section carries out power conversion process by performing a DC-AC power conversion process to generate an alternating current as said power-supply voltage to be supplied to said fluorescent tube. I. 7. (cancelled) 8. (currently amended) A display apparatus having a backlight section and a load other than said backlight section, said display apparatus comprising: an input-voltage generation section for generating a direct current input voltage from an alternating~e current; a first power conversion section including a primary side for receiving said direct current input voltage~ 6~s well a0 and a secondary side isolated from said primary side and uced for generating a direct current power-supply voltage to be supplied to said load as a result of a DC-DC power conversion process carried out on said direct current input voltage; a second power conversion section including a primary side for receiving said direct current input voltage± a~ well ac and a secondary side isolated from said primary side and used for generating a power-supply voltage to be supplied to said backlight section; and a display section for displaying a picture using said backlight section plurality of said backlight sections is employed as a light source of said display section and as many said second power conversion sections and said second power conversion section carries out power conversion process by performing a DC-AC (400) power conversion process to generate an alternating current as said power-supply voltage to be supplied to said fluorescent tube (510).
